JD/MBA in General Management JD/MBA in Healthcare Management

CURRICULUM 2021/2022
(48 CREDIT PROGRAM)

ABOUT THE PROGRAMS

Clarkson University and Albany Law School (ALS) offer two combined JD/MBA degree options: a JD/MBA in general management and a JD/MBA in healthcare management. The combined programs allow students to “double count” courses, which reduces the total time and cost associated with completing the two degrees separately. The combined degree is typically completed in four years or less.

Combined program students complete the first year full time at ALS. The second year is spent as a full-time student at Clarkson with a typical course load of four courses per quarter. Some students complete the MBA requirements in the second year. Students should work closely with the registrar and their advisor at ALS to prepare a plan. If necessary, students will complete the remaining courses by taking one MBA course per term in the third and fourth years. ALS follows a semester academic calendar, while Clarkson follows a quarter calendar. Students must complete the MBA requirements by the end of the winter quarter of the fourth year.

Once MBA requirements are met, ALS will transfer in 13 credits of free electives from the MBA courses taken at Clarkson. Clarkson accepts up to three courses from ALS. This usually reduces the total time needed to complete the JD from three years of coursework to two and a half years. Students who have completed all course requirements at ALS do not return for the spring term of their third year.

Both MBA programs consist of 16 courses (one course = 3 credit hours), although course requirements differ slightly. Clarkson will accept up to three courses taken at ALS for credit toward either MBA. Courses taken in undergraduate study may also be considered for an MBA course waiver.
